

ABSTRACT

A method for operating a hybrid vehicle when starting a power source. The method includes initiating a start sequence that includes driving the power source at a target speed, determining a speed adjustment value based on an amount of vehicle acceleration requested by the driver, adjusting the target speed, and modifying output of the electrical machine to maintain the target speed.